

Kara Kreinheder is serving as the Director of the Center for Excellence in Learning and Teaching. She came to NYCC in August, 2008. Prior to working at NYCC, Kara was an Elementary School Counselor in the Greece Central School District. She received her Master of Education in School Counseling at the University at Buffalo. Her interests are in helping students develop and manage study regimens, finding their strengths in learning, and collaborating on appropriate study skills and test-taking techniques based on students' learning styles. She strives to help students tailor their programs to meet their academic needs. Kara also oversees programs run through CELT such as faculty development, staff development, tutoring, testing accommodations, academic advising, and instructional technology support.
